See British As Losers As Arabs End Strike

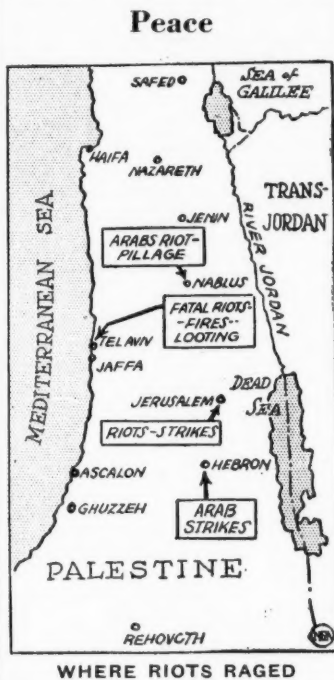

Arabs Return To Work; Stores Are Reopened

JERUSALEM (Spl.)—With the toll of the 175 days' warfare set conservatively at 428 Jewish, Arabic and British dead, and $14,000,000 property damage, the Arab General Strike was called off throughout the Holy Land Sunday by a proclamation of the Arab High Committee.

With the fear of injury and pillage gone, Jewish leaders turned their attention to the visit of the British Royal Commission which will investigate the causes of the uprising with a view to settling peacefully the difficulties. Throughout Palestine the announcement was greeted with rejoicing. Arabs resumed their normal business routine for the first time since April 1. Preceding the proclamation of the High Committee, an appeal was issued by King Ibn Saud, of Saudi Arabia and other Arab kings assuring Palestinian Arabs that their grievances would be given full consideration by the Commission.

Best informed political circles contend that while until now the British Government—so far as Palestine Arab nationalism is concerned—has had dealings with a few local politicians it will now be faced in all Arab claims concerning Palestine with four Arab rulers. These circles further maintain that while the present solution of the Palestine troubles may have saved the faces of High Commissioner Wauchope and other officials, at the same time it has brought about a serious situation for the British Government in future relations with the Arab countries of the Near and Middle East.

The fact that Arab kings were allowed to intervene and pledged themselves to take up the cause of the Palestine Arabs with the British Government is considered a far greater victory for the Arabs here than if the government had agreed to temporary stoppage of Jewish immigration.

Pass Meeting In Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NCJC)—The group of clergymen and laymen who withdrew from the anti-Communist convention of the National Conference of Clergymen and Laymen a few weeks ago in Asheville and formed a "rump" convention barring all Jewish representatives, was to have held a second conclave in Washington this week. This meeting will not be held, for the present at least.

James True of James True Associates, National Press Building, Washington, one of the prime movers in the "bolting" convention, announced today that the meeting has been indefinitely postponed.

Sinai Congregation In 75th Birthday

CHICAGO (Spl.)—James G. McDonald, a member of the editorial staff of The New York Times, and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, have accepted invitations to address the Sinai Congregation's 75th birthday celebration dinner here October 25. Rabbi Louis Mann, present rabbi, announced the acceptance of the invitations.

4-Year Old Turns In False Alarm For Fun

NEW YORK (Spl.)—The honor of being the youngest false alarmist in the Bronx rested lightly on the brow of Susan Bernstein, a dimpled 4-year-old miss, who reached from her tricycle and playfully turned the lever on the fire box at 197th Street and Sedgwick Avenue.

Fortunately Patrolman Richard McCarthy came along, and seeing Susan staring curiously at the box, canceled the alarm. Even today Susan is a little vague about the

Anti-Semite To Head Ticket Of Christian Party

OLYMPIA, Wash. (Spl.)—An avowedly anti-Semitic "political party," whose candidate for U. S. President is William Dudley Pelley, a convicted felon who makes no secret of his admiration for Hitler, will have candidates on the ballot of the State of Washington for the first time in the state's history November 3, it was disclosed this week when a "Christian Party" slate was certified here.

By a strange quirk of fate, the anti-Semitic party was put on the ballot by a Jew, Jess N. Rosenberg, state supervisor of elections.

Christian Party activities have been denounced by the Spokane

Flaming Cross Flashes On Hillside Overlooking Spokane

SPOKANE, Wash. (Spl.)—A 30-foot high lighted cross flashed from a hillside overlooking Spokane last week. A spokesman for the group at the "flaming" cross said it was a protest against a Communist speaker in the city. It was lighted with bulbs and batteries.

Ministerial Council, American Legion officials and prominent Christian ministers throughout the state.

Jewish leaders said placing of the Christian Party slate on the ballot will reveal the strength of the anti-Semitic movement in the state. The candidates, chosen at a "nominating convention" in Seattle primary day, include Malcolm M. Moore, treasurer of the little town of Ilwaco on Grays Harbor and a Centralia newspaper editress, Jean Goss.

Fees paid by the candidates for filing totaled $957.

Food Shortage New Worry For Nazi

BERLIN (Spl.)—Food lines of housewives waiting for an opportunity to buy meats and butter, made their appearance here again as shortage in many lines of supplies began to be felt.

What with rising prices and the scarcity of food, the critical economic situation of the Third Reich is worrying Nazi leaders. In an effort to induce Germans to eat whale meat, Dr. Herman Reischle, department chief of the German Nutritive Guild, was host here to a group of Nazi party functionaries at a whale meat luncheon. Dr. Reischle reported that the whale meat proved tasty and was notable for its lasting qualities.

Speaking at Hoe, Bavaria, last week, Rudolph Hess declared that if necessary the Reich would continue to tighten its belt and do with less food in conformity with the slogan, "Cannon instead of butter."

Stand By Brundage at German Meeting Is Attacked In N. Y.

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Reaction followed quickly on the heels of the speech delivered by Avery Brundage before a meeting of German Americans in New York in the course of which he declared, "We can learn much from Germany."

The New York Evening Post declared editorially, "We wish Mr. Brundage had been more specific. What, in particular, does he think we can learn from Germany? What features of the Hitler regime would he like to see adopted here?"

"Does he think America, like Germany, should abandon freedom of speech, press and assembly?"

Anti-Semitism In Florida Race

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (Spl.)—Using the name, "Society of Royal Americans," a new organization has called upon citizens of Florida to vote Republican because Roosevelt is depending for his election on the "Jewish vote."

"The Jews in New York carry the balance of power in the election," a letter sent out by the organization declares, "and to this class he is appealing by putting a Jew into his new cabinet if he is re-elected, as well as the Jew he already has at the head of the treasury department."

At another point, the letter says, "President Roosevelt today is depending for his next election largely upon the Negro and Jewish vote . . . Voters, make your own decision, whether you wish to vote for a party which is proselyting Jews and Negroes or whether you will vote for the principles of your forefathers."

B'NAI B'RITH SMOKER
HAMMOND, Ind. (Spl.)—The Hammond Lodge of B'nai B'rith inaugurated the fall season with a smoker here Monday night.

Does he think we, like Germany, should scrap our Constitution and substitute rule by one man and one party, with all other parties barred. "Would he like us to replace due process and trial by jury, habeas corpus and right to counsel, for the Nazi 'People's Courts'? Would he like us to adopt intolerance and inequality, racial hatred and religious prejudice? Would he have us suppress the parochial school and gag the pulpit, Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish, as in Germany?"

"Or would he have us join Germany in destroying labor unions so that wages could be cut with impunity under the guise of 'national socialism'?"

"These are the chief features of Nazi rule. Is Mr. Brundage advocating them for this country? Is there one principle of the Nazi system which would fit into ours? Is there one feature of Nazi rule that does not clash with the American way of life and government? We wish Mr. Brundage would be more specific."

16-YEAR OLD PREFERS PALESTINE

Returns From Holy Land After Year; Says Girls Don't Go Out Until Eighteen Years Old

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (Spl.)—A 16-year-old American high school girl, whose speech here before a crowded joint Junior-Senior Hadassah meeting captivated the audience, said she would rather live in Palestine than in the United States.

The girl, Miss Natalie Tennenbaum, spent one year in Palestine on a scholarship she won while a student at the Jewish Bureau of Education in Cincinnati.

Displaying a remarkable platform presence and bringing her audience to laughter with tales of many curious incidents of her Palestinian stay, the sparkling-eyed, vibrant speaker won over her listeners with the breadth of her observation and the profundity of her deductions.

"I received full credit for my year's work in the Gymnasias in Jerusalem," Miss Tennenbaum said. "Graduation from Gymnasias is tantamount to completion of one year of college work, so I had no difficulty in securing an exchange of one year's work in the Cincinnati High School for the year I studied in Jerusalem."

Miss Tennenbaum declared that she was struck by the Palestinian maidens' refusal to take part in social functions and affairs until she had graduated from Gymnasias. "No girls use rouge or powder, or even dress up real well, until they graduate," she said, "And that means they are about eighteen years old before they begin to have dates, go out, and go to parties."

More Jewish Farm Schools Needed

Because of the emphasis of anti-Semites on the undeniable paucity of Jewish people in the United States in farming, the American Jewish Community have derived a particular pleasure from the growing number of Jewish young people, both here and in other countries, who are choosing agriculture as an occupation. Jews can look back to a thousand years of farming history in pastoral Palestine, but ancient history and the logic of forced removal from the soil are unsatisfactory refutations to charges that Jews crowd the professions and the business world.

So that when an almost wholly Jewish-supported farming institution, which has won acclaim from every White House occupant in its history, celebrates the fortieth year of its successful transformation of underprivileged city youths into robust Americans farmers, it is worthy of notice in the Jewish press and pulpit. Sunday, The National Farm School, on its gently-rolling 1200-acre campus and farms, rejoiced in its completion of its 39 years of existence at ceremonies called the Annual Harvest Gathering.

Founded in 1896 by Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf as a pioneering institution in agricultural education, The National Farm School has grown from an initial enrollment of 10 to 185, a faculty numbering five to twenty-five and acreage of 122 to 1,200. During almost four decades, the Farm School has won the praise, the admiration and the support of broad-visioned Jewish leaders throughout the nation. Its system of selecting students carefully with especial foresight into the student's desire to enter farming permanently has earned for it a reputation which last spring saw all its graduating class employed months before completion of the three-year course. During that time, if able, they pay $100 per year tuition, a mere fraction of the cost for food, housing and education. Tabulated records during the past ten years show that 46 per cent of the graduates are now in some branch of agriculture, either tilling their own land, employed by master farmers, or engaged in allied activities.

With the successful operation of The National Farm School as an example, it seems unbelievable that more Farm Schools patterned after the Doylestown institution, have not been organized in other parts of the nation to facilitate the removal of Jewish youths from city streets and implant in them an earnest yearning for life on the soil. The financial support of the Farm School is nation-wide, revealing a general understanding of the beneficent fulfillment of Dr. Krauskopf's vision, President Herbert D. Allman, without pay, has for years superintended the smooth operation of the school and promoted the growth which even now is hampered somewhat by lack of sufficient financing.

When the time comes that intelligent planning will be directed towards the American Jewish Community as a whole, more Farm Schools for Jewish youth will be established. Until then only a Dr. Krauskopf or a Herbert D. Allman will sacrifice earthly gains for their vision of a large and substantial Jewish farming class in the United States.

Freedom of the Press

Open Letter to Mr. Avery Brundage

Mr. Avery Brundage
American Olympic Committee
237 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Brundage:

Were it not for the fact that a section of the press publicized, unmeritedly, your utterances during the German Day Celebrations last Sunday, we would not dignify your reiterated but unfounded praise of Hitler with a letter of reproach.

That you should extol Nazism has become a rather expected fact; but that you should offer it to the people of the United States as an example and a paragon of a worthy governmental form is a demonstration of a crude and vulgar arrogance. Were you to preach democracy in Germany, sir, with a much less unqualified praise, your fate would be, as you must remember from observation, a concentration camp. Here you were permitted to mouth your loud support of Nazism, in itself a subversive act, and although you do not go unchallenged you go free. Which is the better country?

You said, "We can learn much from Germany." What can we learn but that Nazism means the final and ultimate degradation of mankind; that in Germany under the Nazi rule life is brutalized and force is the order of the day; that to be alive in Nazi Germany is not to be free and hopeful, but to be fettered, stifled and despairing.

You said "Germany has progressed as a nation out of her discouragement of five years ago into a new spirit of confidence in herself." Is this true, Mr. Brundage? Or is it not rather true that Germany as a nation, the great mass of the German people, is mercilessly under the heavy heel of the mad Hitlerite rulers? You need only be reminded that no nation can have progressed whose halls of justice are places of horror, whose prisons are surfeited, whose people are frightened, whose aspiration is war and whose streets have run with the blood of the innocent.

Do you remember, Mr. Brundage, the burning of the books? The bloody purge of 1935? The Nuremberg Laws against the Jews? The banishment of great thinkers and great artists? The arming of children and the social imprisonment of women? It was for these reasons that good Americans opposed the sending of an Olympic team to Germany. And it is these typically Nazi, and only Nazi phenomena that you countenance with your support and applause. It is truly natural that Nazis, both here and in Germany, should manifest their approbation of your remarks and should with loud praise look upon you as a friend. Most Americans, Mr. Brundage, would shun such friendship.

Yours truly,
MRS. MARK HARRIS,
Acting Chairman,
Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League,

Re-elect Rabbi To Board of Library

GARY, Ind. (NCJC)—Rabbi Gary August of Temple Israel has been elected for a second two-year term as a member of the public library board. He is the only rabbi in the city's 30-year history to have served in that capacity. His election by the city council was unanimous in each instance.

Several years ago Rabbi August published a novel, "God's Gentleman," dealing with a rabbi's life in this city.

My Experience In Pulpit Programs

DR. HENRY BERKOWITZ

Rabbi Temple Beth Israel, Portland, Ore.

IN his book, "Judaism as a Civilization," Professor Mordecai Kaplan claims that the services of the synagogue as they are now conducted are not spiritually rewarding, that the layman is not satisfied intellectually or emotionally. In fact, says he, the services of the synagogue are dull, repetitious, uninteresting, even boring.

It was in response to this challenge and many other more direct ones, that the author of this paper determined upon a new experiment in pulpit program. He decided to stop preaching for a season to see what would happen. Naturally he had long since become disillusioned as to the spell-binding power of his matchless oratory. He had come to the conclusion several years before, that people were not going to pack the benches every Friday night just to hear what he had to say. Having arrived at this unflattering verdict and finding it necessary to save his bruised egotism, he comforted himself with the reflection that congregations soon grow tired of the greatest pulpit orators and even they can not keep the congregations coming back every week to hear the same old voice.

There is much justice in the criticism of our formal programs, of our silent congregations, that sit through an elaborate musical service and a set discourse. Having come to this conclusion, as many others have come before me, it became necessary to introduce some substitute that would preserve the traditional dignity and decorum that Reform has so splendidly achieved.

It was with this objective in view that an experiment was launched in Congregation Beth Israel, Portland, Oregon, called "The Friday Evening Discussion Series." Extensive publicity was launched telling the congregation exactly how the new plan was to work, and trying to build up a measure of curiosity as to how it would work. A couple of weeks prior to the opening of the experiment I appealed to the Board of Trustees to give the plan their vigorous support.

The New Plan

The plan was simple. It was to discontinue all formal preaching for a period of twenty consecutive weeks. Instead, there should be the presentation by qualified laymen, of original papers upon subjects planned long in advance. The topics were divided into two series of ten weeks each: the first ten to be historical, and the second ten to be controversial. Three papers were assigned for each topic. After the papers were read from the pulpit the rabbi was to give a brief summary, or amplification, after which the members were to be invited to comment from the floor and to ask questions. A prospectus containing a detailed description of the twenty topics was sent to the members of the Congregation several weeks in advance.

The next question was how to get laymen to do some original research and prepare papers on subjects absolutely foreign to most of them. To my surprise the majority were gratified by the invitation to speak from the pulpit. It was therefore, possible to assign the first twelve addresses immediately. This assured me of the success of the initial four weeks. The readers of the papers were told that they were to speak for just six minutes. A shelf of reference books was provided, which circulated from hand to hand among those who had accepted assignments.

First Service

The opening session was to be devoted to the general discussion of the subject "The Origins of Israel." Two men and one woman had accepted assignments on the subjects:

What attitude do we have toward the six-day creation story, and what part did God play in forming our world?"

"The emergence of the Jewish people from obscurity";

"Who was Israel, and what was his destiny?"

The Temple was crowded. I introduced the series with a few remarks, and then called upon the readers of the papers one by one. The people listened with respectful attention.

Immediately following, I gave a summary of the entire subject in about ten minutes, and then came the questions. To my surprise and pleasure a member of the congregation immediately rose and put a question. Others followed. I permitted the discussion to proceed for a reasonable time, and then dismissed the congregation with the benediction. The reaction was sensational. Those who had read papers enjoyed all the emotions of a Confirmation child who has made a good speech. They were showered with congratulations.

Second Service

The following week the general subject was "The Long Shadow of Sinai." Again two men and a woman appeared on the pulpit and delivered original papers on the subjects:

"Moses and the Emergence of the Jewish Moral Code"; "Miracles—Real and Unreal";

"Is Moses still a spiritual influence, and what laws of his are still vital?"

Again the auditorium was crowded, and again the discussions following were intelligent and lively. The experiment became the talk of the town.

Fortunately my community is blessed with a fair proportion of able laymen, many of them college trained and perfectly capable of doing some reading and preparing a discourse.

The Temple Became a Study Hall

The third week carried on the historical continuity by three papers on the subjects:

"How did the Jews get into Palestine, and what did they do when they arrived there?"

"The Origins of Hebrew Government, and the Great Political figures of our early history";

"What radical changes came about in Hebrew Religion when we entered Palestine?"

By this time all inhibitions had evaporated, and the congregants looked forward with avidity

Attended so many committee meetings last week for clubs, lodges, Temples, and what have you, that all my noon hours were spent on discussions instead of eating. . . . Got to cut that out. For instance, B'nai Brith up at "Solomon's" planning for this, that and the other, and Eph Levin, Sam Mantel, Saul Munter, Jack Kammins, Richard Efrogmson, George Solomons, Eph Pretzfelder, Isadore Feibleman, Judge Karabell, and Ed Cohn, all planning and scheming how to make this year the best of all for B'nai Brith, and I believe they will do it, too. . . . Then another time and another day and place and it's a Brotherhood meeting with Sid Romer, Sultan Cohen, Dr. Jaeger, Jack Kammins, Ed Cohn again, Dr. Jacobson and Sam Beck with plans for a better Brotherhood. . . . Which will probably materialize. . . . The teachers' meeting at the Temple in the evening with Dr. Jacobs, Mildred Levy, Si Mendelsberg, Meyer Rosenberg, Marion Simon, Shulamith Raab, Zena Valinetz, Jean Goldsmith, Clarice Khrongold, Freda Brill, Mr. Harrison, Miss Beck, and did I forget anybody? . . . Well, if I did, forgive me, and I'll certainly catch you the next time. . . . All this in addition to Masonic lodge meetings and Lawyers' Associations. . . . So you see it's a pretty busy time. . . . A fellow's got to have some fun, too, so around and around it was Thursday night in the Silver Slipper Club and Lou Jaeger, Howard Dulberger, Germaine Leyman, but not together. . . . Friday night in the Palace Theatre where you can always see everyone, and among others before the lights were dimmed, Adelaide Cohn, Annette Marcus, Harry Fogel and others. . . . Fredericks on Saturday night, late and cold, not to mention damp also, stopped in for a snack as did Mr. and Mrs. Louis Golden and Jeanette Horowitz. . . . That Harry Alpert is now associated with the law firm of Kammins and Kroot. . . . saw Harry Alpert yesterday on Washington Street with Ed. I'll tell you about them as I get them. . . . and just heard that Bob and Dorothy Efrogmson are the proud parents of a brand-new baby boy. . . . congratulations. . . . COST OF NEGLIGENCE

Accidents in the United States last year cost 100,000 lives, caused more than 9,000,000 injuries and cost in actual cash about $3,400,000,000. About 274 persons were killed each day and lost pay, doctor's bills and so on amounted to about $9,500,000 daily.

are under consideration by the State Highway Commission.

The dual lane highway, providing a separate pavement for streams of traffic moving in opposite directions, is considered the best guarantee of highway safety that can be provided through construction. It eliminates the head-on collision and the side-swipe accident, both of which have resulted in many fatalities on the state highways.

By planning construction of dual highways on routes where traffic is heaviest and where it is likely to increase materially within the next few years, the State Highway Commission is attempting to anticipate Indiana's highway needs. The single 20-foot lane to be built between Anderson and Muncie at this time, is at one side of the right-of-way, providing for the addition of the second lane when traffic conditions and finances of the Highway Commission permit.

Twin Brothers See Curtain Go Up On 1st Play

NEW YORK (Spl.) — Jewish twins, both of whom were members of Penn State's boxing team, and one of whom fought his way to the National Intercollegiate feather weight championship, watched the curtain go up at the opening of the Theatre Guild's nineteenth season on their first play, "And Stars Remain," Monday night.

So alike they can hardly be told apart, Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein are the first twin playwriting team in theatre history.

The Epsteins are no strangers to the theatre. They came to Broadway via Hollywood, where after visiting friends, they decided to remain. They write original stories for the major studios.

They had both taken playwriting courses at Penn State. They had always felt they should do something with all they learned. And so they decided to write a play. The Harriman Bank case gave them their inspiration for "And Stars Remain." The Theatre Guild was the first organization to see the manuscript and bought it within two weeks after it was submitted.

In collaboration they work together, as against the system of one doing a scene and the other doing another. They write in pencil and keep the radio going all the time. The radio creeps into "And Stars Remain" now and then and the boys believe that it was just because it was going and they wrote down what it said rather than what they said.

They hope to go on writing plays—and motion picture scenarios. They are due back in Hollywood right now on contract but waited to see their first night. They like both New York and Hollywood. They like almost everything in fact. But they are pretty sick of hearing jokes about twins.

TAKES NAME FROM FOREST

Academy, originally, was the name of a grove near Athens where Plato gathered with his followers. In time, the school of philosophy headed by Plato took the name of the grove where its doctrines were first taught. Academy in the modern sense refers to either a group of learned men or more commonly, to a school or college.

Writer Names 12 To Oct. 10th Gridiron List

NEW YORK (Spl.)—A pair of ace halfbacks who carved themselves spacious niches in football's wall of fame, along with 12 other Jewish players, were thrown into the gridiron limelight last Saturday as a result of sterling play. Columbia's Sid Luckman and Army's Monk Meyer staged a thrilling duel before 35,000 frenzied football enthusiasts in Yankee Stadium in Army's 27-16 victory.

The 147-pound Meyer, a veteran back, eclipsed Sophomore Luckman in their bids for national stardom, but it was only because Meyer had a team of experienced men behind him to block and catch his bullet-like aerial heaves. It was Luckman's first major battle since he graduated from Erasmus High School in New York where he starred for three years before entering Columbia.

The Big Ten produced its usual share of Jewish players in the opening games with Ohio State and Chicago showing the more promising gridmen. Sol Maggied, senior guard, gave an excellent performance at guard for Ohio State, and Morton Goodstein, halfback, and Max Greenbaum, quarterback, were instrumental in Chicago's improved showing. Pittsburgh defeated the mighty Buckeyes, 6-0, and Marshall Goldberg, Pitt halfback, had a good deal to do with the defeat of the Columbus, O., athletes.

Other Big Ten players who probably will see a lot more action as the season progresses are Louie Levine, quarterback; Mort Siegel, tackle; and Greenwald, guard, all of Michigan; Ollie Adelman, quarterback, Northwestern; Weiss, halfback, Wisconsin; and Sid Weiss, Indiana center.

Henry Kuhn, giant California center, played a good game as the Trojans defeated Illinois. The twelfth addition to the Oct. 10th honor roll is Maury Zlotnick, husky center at the Indiana State Teachers. Zlotnick was a freshman player at Indiana University at Bloomington two years ago.
